Heritage walks are a hit with those who want to discover the city

A walk through city's history

If swish shopping malls and zooming Range Rovers on Delhi roads don't impress you anymore, a walk in the past may get you going. Treat yourself to a dose of the city's rich heritage with Delhi Heritage Walks (DHW), a year-old initiative started by professionals, who share love for wanderlust. And above all a love for Delhi.

Like walk leader, Kanika Singh, a historian, says, "Leading a walk, along with academic and management skill, importantly needs a personal touch."

Kanika, who has been leading walks for a few years now, recalls how once she was told to lead a heritage walk for schoolkids, but surprisingly ended up with a group of hearing impaired children. "Had I known that before hand, I would have made arrangements to communicate more effectively. So, I decided to come up with DHW," she says.

You can have a walk to Mehrauli, Old Delhi, Hauz Khas, Nizamuddin, Lodhi Garden and Kashmiri Gate.
